

MORNING APPEAL.

Thursday, June 14, 1888.

IT WILL NOT BE IN THE NEXT.

The public will await with much interest Mr. Cleveland's letter of acceptance of the renomination for President. There will be a great desire to see how he will explain the radical change in his views regarding a second term. It is safe to say, however, that the coming letter will not contain the following:

When we consider the patronage of this great office [the Presidency], the allurements of power, the temptation to retain public places once gained, and, more than all, the availability a party finds in the incumbent when a horde of office-holders, with a zeal born of benefits received, and fostered by the hopes of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the President for reelection a most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent political action which must characterize a government by the people.

The sentiments there expressed appeared to be the honest judgment of Mr. Cleveland four years ago. He has never disowned them, or indicated since that he was mistaken then. But he has quietly ignored them, and forced his renomination by use of the very methods which he deprecated then. Consistency at least might have led him to send a letter to the convention declining a renomination, with the understanding that as soon as it was read, his managers should do the spontaneous act and renominate him by acclamation. Perhaps he was afraid they wouldn't. One such experience as Conkling had is a great warning to other men.

UNDER TWO FLAGS.

The Democrats this year are advancing upon the breast-works of American institutions under two flags.

They are marching under the Red Bandana flag unfurled at St. Louis and they are also marshalling their forces under another flag in which the same color predominates, the flag of St. George which floats over Windsor Castle in England.

The colors raised at St. Louis create the profoundest enthusiasm in England for every Britisher sees how well they match the colors of his own country. The only improvement he could suggest would be to have inscribed on the St. Louis flag, "Free Trade" and "God save the Queen."

On November next the hosts of the Democracy and the minions of the Cobden Club will march under these two banners in a crusade against the commerce and prosperity of the American people, bent on the destruction of both.

But they will be met and repulsed by an army of intelligent voters pouring out of the workshops of America, coming out of her mines and her fields and swarming from the mountain forests to defend their homes, their trades and their wages, and above this army of Republican voters will wave the old regulation flag of the United States under whose folds the industries of America have always been protected.

The Proof of the Pudding.

Until ten years ago Sweden prospered under a Protective tariff. Then doctrinaires began a Free-trade agitation and finally succeeded in getting their theories adopted. During the decade of Free-trade Swedish prosperity has declined. Manufactures and agriculture have suffered greatly. Popular discontent has grown, until the chief issue in the recent election was the question of a return to the principle of Protection.

The leading champion of the Protectionists was Archbishop Sonnerberg whose powerful influence and wise counsels were of the utmost service. The result of the election was an overwhelming victory for protection. There is great rejoicing in Sweden. The editor of the New York Nordstjernan, in a recent interview, said:

For the first time in a number of years Sweden seems to have awakened from the absurdity of her internal revenue position, and has come to think that she should become a manufacturer for herself and not a mere purchaser and consumer of goods for others. I believe Sweden is entering now an era of prosperity. Protection has built the country up, and, while Sweden has neither the extent nor variety of the United States, yet the stimulus which protection must give to the grain-growing, milling and manufacturing industries cannot but be fraught with good results.

Sweden is acting upon the lesson of her own experience. Verily, "the proof of the pudding is in the eating."—Buffalo Express.

The Ticket.

The Pioche Record remarks:—In another column we publish the Republican State ticket. It is composed of representative men of Nevada. None of them were born sucking the proverbial golden spoon. They have made names and places for themselves among the leaders of men, on the battle field, in the mine, on the farm, at the bar and in the halls of legislation. Brains combined with incessant, well directed labor, have raised them to such positions among their fellow-men as to command their respect and admiration. When the professional taffy-giver "sympathizes with the laboring man" that much persecuted individual—and most of all persecuted by the alleged sympathy—winks inwardly to his soul and says to her "Sit still my soul, this is rather rough; but then it doesn't really hurt us, and it seems to give the little fellow up there on the platform heaps of satisfaction." But this is a ticket composed of workmen. They have been workers with their hands, and some are still; and not an idler nor an office holder is there among them. Most of them are poor and all have been giving and taking hard knocks all their lives. This fact is worthy of consideration, for no man can be expected to serve the people well if his life has been spent in luxury and ease. He can't do it. The public service properly done requires all of an active man's best efforts.

The powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight alums or phosphate powders sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 105 Wall St. N. Y. Jy30,1v
